London's 'Little Season' Attracts Sub-Debutantes

The King and Queen Return to Town From Balmoral Oct. 10; Prince of Wales Has Public Engagements

Many Coming From North

Princess Mary and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Among Those Expected in the Capital

From The Tribune's European Bureau
LONDON, Sept. 23.—The next month will see the opening of London's so-called "little season," a number of sub-debutantes who will not formally come out until spring will appear at numerous balls and entertainments which always occur with the beginning of the fall hunts. Among these autumn debutantes are Lady Patricia Herbert, only daughter of the Earl and Countess Pembroke and Montgomery; the Hon. Imogen Grenfell, youngest daughter of Lord and Lady Desborough, and Lady Mary Fitzalan Howard, daughter of the Duchess of Norfolk.

The King and Queen will return to town from Balmoral on October 10, and the Prince of Wales has several public engagements in London the next few weeks.

Princess Mary and Lord Lascelles are also due to return to Chesterfield House, their town place, within a short time. Their Yorkshire home, Goldborough Hall, is undergoing extensive alterations and will not be ready for occupancy for some time.

Hope to Occupy New Embassy
The American Ambassador and Mrs. Harnett will return next week from Kinnaird, the beautiful place in Perthshire they rented for the summer from Lady Muir Mackenzie. They are hoping soon to be able to move into the house at 11, Grosvenor Gardens, which was left to the United States by Herbert Morgan and is to be the new permanent embassy in London.

Others returning from the north include Sir John and Lady Haverly, who have been staying at the Grosvenor, and Mrs. C. L. Hussey, wife of the naval attaché to the embassy here. Queen Maud of Norway is expected here on her annual visit to Appleton Hall, her place in Norfolk, where she will stay for at least two months. Prince Olaf will probably accompany the Queen.

Italian Crown Prince on Visit
The Crown Prince of Italy, who has been making his midsummer tour of the Italian coast, is expected to visit London next week. Several American guests were present at a dinner given Wednesday at the Savoy Hotel to celebrate Italy's anniversary of national unity.

Among the society folk who have departed from England this week are Miss Duff Frazier, of New York, who spent the summer here and in France. She is returning to New York via Canada, where she will visit her father, Mr. and Mrs. John Duff Frazier, and her sister, Miss Duff Frazier, who is married to Mr. and Mrs. John Duff Frazier.

Princess and Princess Christopher of Greece and Princess Andrew, who came here to attend the wedding of Princess Nina of Russia last week, have gone to Paris.

Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, wife of the special attaché at the embassy, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Beal, who is spending several weeks in Devonshire during their absence.

Mrs. Hamlin Garland, wife of the American author, is returning from Scotland with her daughters shortly. The Hamlin Garlands have decided to stay some time longer in London and have extended the tenancy of their flat here.

Weddings of the week include that of Mr. H. W. Styles and Miss Violet Canada, which was celebrated at the Grosvenor in Hanover Square. The bride was a mauve wedding, the bridegroom being trimmed with a row of crystal beads and a silver train lined with mauve. The bride wore a dress of the dresses of the five bridesmaids, Priscilla, Countess of Annesley, Lord and Lady de Freyne and Sir Ambrose Poynter attended.

Miss Mellersh Is Married
Miss Violet Mellersh and Mr. Sydney G. Fenton were also married last week. Lady Carr, the Duchess of Portland and Lady Ashfield attended the reception. The bride wore a dress of the dresses of the five bridesmaids, Priscilla, Countess of Annesley, Lord and Lady de Freyne and Sir Ambrose Poynter attended.

Visiting Bankers to Use Private Phone System

37 Trunk Lines, 120 Extensions and 700 Operators Will Wait Upon Convention

A private telephone system for the use of the 7,000 bankers who will meet in New York the first week in October has just been installed by the New York Telephone Company.

Service equivalent to that maintained in a city of 30,000 persons will be handled through the main office in the Hotel Commodore. Every visitor to the convention will be handed a small card bearing the words "For information call Vanderbilt 3131." Eighteen hotels will have their "Bankers' Central," and the main telephone exchange will provide immediate connection with the railroad stations, the headquarters of the various hospitality committees for the convention and all other points of interest.

Officials of the telephone company said yesterday that this is the largest private enterprise of the sort that has ever been installed in New York. Thirty-seven trunk lines, 120 extension lines, eighteen tie-lines and five extension lines will be necessary to carry the traffic.

A staff of 700 volunteer "hello girls," recruited from the local banks and bond houses, are being trained in the operation of Vanderbilt 3131.

Westchester Turns Out at Tenth Horse and Cattle Show
Race Between Hunt Teams a Novel Feature; Mr. Moses Taylor Entertains Party of 150 at Dinner

More than 400 society folk of Westchester County attended the tenth annual North Westchester Horse and Cattle Show held yesterday on the grounds of Annandale Farm, the country estate of Mr. Moses Taylor, on the outskirts of Mount Kisco. The grounds were covered with an old-fashioned fair, with cattle exhibits, horse show ring and a concert by a big band.

One of the features of the show was an exhibition of seventy head of Guernsey cows considered the finest in the country. They came from the estates of several New York millionaires. Previous to the horse show Mr. Taylor entertained his guests at a luncheon and personal friends numbering 150 at dinner in his manor house. The cattle show brought together one of the finest collections of cows ever seen in Westchester. A large number of prizes were carried off by Mr. Taylor, his "Tango of Annandale," one of the most highly prized cows in the country, receiving the championship ribbon. Others who received high ribbons for their cows were Mr. John Henry Hammond, of Bellwood; Mr. Reginald Lewis, of Preston Herbert; Mr. Clarence Whitman, of the Bedford and Westchester Hunt team, with Mr. J. M. E. Bowman as master, and the Bedford Whip and Spur Club, of which Miss Jane Baldwin was president.

The finish was close, the first prize going to the hunt club. The saddle race for women was closely contested, the first prize being awarded to Miss Nina of Russia last week, have gone to Paris.

Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, wife of the special attaché at the embassy, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Beal, who is spending several weeks in Devonshire during their absence.

Mrs. Hamlin Garland, wife of the American author, is returning from Scotland with her daughters shortly. The Hamlin Garlands have decided to stay some time longer in London and have extended the tenancy of their flat here.

Married 33 Years, Mayor Advises All To Enter Wedlock

Mutual Helpfulness Built on Foundation of Pure Love Is His Recipe for Happiness and Success

It was Horace Greeley who said "Go West, young man." It was Mr. Punch who said "Advice to Those About to Be Married" was the one word "Don't!" But it was Mayor John F. Hylan of New York who comes to bat to-day with a new piece of advice to young men. "By all means get married," is Mayor Hylan's admonition.

A thoughtful young man with a romantic expression asked his honor what his idea was of the truth of that famous line "Two can live as cheaply as one."

"It isn't a question of expensed the Mayor insisted with all the confidence of a man whose salary is $15,000 a year. "It is one of mutual helpfulness built upon the solid foundation of pure love. If the young couple are sensible persons they will live within their income, whatever that may be. A man with a good wife and a happy home is always a successful man. He will climb the ladder to higher things. Early struggles to rise may seem difficult at times, but really they are made easy when true love reigns."

The Mayor and Mrs. Hylan plan to spend their thirty-third wedding anniversary quietly at their home in Bushwick, with a few intimate friends and the members of their immediate family.

Babe Ruth a Father For Last 16 Months

Secret Kept Because Little Daughter Was Not Robust and Death Was Feared

Babe Ruth has been a father for the last sixteen months, it became known yesterday, when Mrs. Ruth appeared in the lobby of the Ansonia Hotel, where they live, with Dorothy, the ballplayer's little daughter, in her arms.

"We didn't tell any one," said Mrs. Ruth, "because the baby was far under weight when born and we were afraid she might die as our other three children did. The baby was sick all the time for the first few months, but is doing much better now."

Three children previously born to the Ruths died in infancy. Dorothy looks like her father. Her hair is black and her eyes brown. Not even members of the hotel staff were in on the Babe's secret. He had been seen sometimes striding furiously as possible through a corridor, with some things wrapped in a blanket in his arms, but such conduct causes no remark since the enactment of the Volstead law, and when a friend asked Mrs. Ruth about the baby's father, she said she didn't know at all.

"I should say not," replied Mrs. Ruth, indignantly. "This is my own baby."

British to Fight U. S. Ambitions For Ocean Trade
President Smull of Fleet Corporation Tells English Ship Owners We Are Prepared to Claim Our Share

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—"British ship owners are fully awake to the fact that America is determined to have an adequate merchant marine," Mr. Burston Smull, president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, declared to-day in a statement to the National Merchant Marine Association. "Knowing that they are prepared to give us a stiff fight for that part of the ocean carrying trade we look-a-fair share of our own business."

Mr. Smull said that if the British had any illusions about America's determination to take in the commerce of the world, and to expand it, they were enlightened by a speech he made at a luncheon attended by the leaders in British shipping in London just before he sailed for New York.

"I told them frankly what we have been doing and what we planned to do," said Mr. Smull, "and I emphasized the fact that we had rounded out a shipbuilding program of 100 vessels in Washington to take the place of a purely governmental department. I added: 'The policy of the Shipping Board does not include continuing government operations indefinitely. In fact, as soon as Congress gives us government aid we feel that our boats will go easily and quickly, except, of course, some of these hulls constructed in time of war.'"

"I told them at the luncheon," Mr. Smull continued, "that it was foolish for any one to think that the American government or the American people could afford to take in all the commerce of the world. What we want, I explained, was some slight government help, say for ten years, to enable us to establish our merchant marine by building up a fleet of ships, and our new operators the deep sea trade. The American people have decided they will have American steamers on the seas. And if Congress will not give us their help, and the private owners will not increase their holdings, and new owners will not buy further we will find the next move will have to be government ownership and operation."

Lester W. Clark, Former Supreme Court Justice, Dies

Well Known Republican. Long Identified With Party and Civic Affairs, Expires at Staten Island Home

Lester W. Clark, former Supreme Court Justice and one of the best known Republicans of Staten Island, died at his home there, 100 Clinton Avenue, New Brighton, his death from arterio-sclerosis occurred early yesterday and the funeral is to be held privately to-morrow afternoon with burial in the Mt. Hope Cemetery, New Dorp. He was in his sixty-ninth year.

For twenty-six years former Justice Clark had been prominently identified with the civic, educational and legal affairs in Richmond, having been a member of the Board of Aldermen, and engaged in many of the most important investigations affecting Staten Island in a few years ago. He was the candidate of the Citizens' Union for the Supreme Court in this county, having served in 1907, and was also serving with conspicuous ability until 1920.

At the end of his term he was appointed an official referee of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Clark formerly was attorney for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and its subsidiary, the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company.

Lester W. Clark was a native of Massachusetts, having been born in Brookline in 1854. He prepared for college in the Boston Latin School and was graduated from Harvard with honors in 1876. Three years later, having completed a course at Columbia Law School, he was admitted to the New York Bar.

During his early residence on Staten Island, former Justice Clark became affiliated with the law firm of Scott & Crowell. Later he joined partnership with Frederick de Puyser Foster and also Tracy, Boardman & Platt, conducting extensive legal practice. He became an ardent Republican, can, taking active part in political as well as other affairs in his home borough. It was his loyalty to party and devotion to the public cause that earned him wide support for his candidacy for the Supreme Court.

At the expiration of his term in 1920 a sharp controversy arose over the action of the Board of Aldermen in trying to shelve him from within the Joseph Aspinwall, both of whom had been entered in the Democratic and Republican primaries. A large number of prominent Republicans, including George W. Wickham, Attorney General in President Taft's Cabinet, arose to his support. At that time Mr. Wickham said: "It would be a sharp controversy arose over the action of the Board of Aldermen in trying to shelve him from within the Joseph Aspinwall, both of whom had been entered in the Democratic and Republican primaries.
